

WILSON WILL REST ON SHORT CRUISE

President to Spend Three Days
on Mayflower to Recoup
From His Labors.

In order that he may have complete rest and quiet after his labors of the past few weeks over currency and tariff reform, the lobby exposures, and patronage, President Wilson left Washington this morning for a three-day cruise on the Mayflower. He will return to Washington Thursday night, and the following day will go to Gettysburg. Saturday, Sunday, and Monday he will spend with his family at the "summer capital" in Cornish, N. H.

The President's only companion on the cruise will be Dr. Carey N. Greyson, U. S. N., the White House physician. No correspondents will be aboard, no salutes fired, or whistles tooted, and the officers of the yacht have been instructed to refrain from attending the formal courtesies of the navy. Every effort will be made to give the President complete retirement.

Cruise Comes As Surprise.
The announcement of the cruise came as a surprise, for while it is known that the President was beginning to show the strain of his work and the oppressive weather, he appeared unusually bright and cheerful yesterday morning when he saw the Washington correspondents. He received them smiling, and remarked on the drop in temperature as a respite to be thankful for.

"I am feeling first rate," he said. Secretary Tumulty, who is as solicitous of the President's health as he is of the health of his own children, has been more than usually anxious lately to save his chief unnecessary worry and fatigue. Old attaches of the White House have already conceded that President Wilson is one of the most persistent and indefatigable workers who has ever occupied the White House.

Works Late At Night.
Night after night, pending the final touches to the Administration's currency measure, he has sat with his advisers discussing all phases of the proposed legislation, and even after the "catching up" with the work of his office. His quiet but effective labor has surprised even Secretary Tumulty, who served at the President's side during the stirring days when the latter was governor of New Jersey.

Often when it has been stated positively that certain appointments of the President would not go to the Senate because of the pressure of other matters, the President has frequently, at the last moment, added these appointments to the list to be sent in on the very day of these positive assertions. In other words, in the brief intervals between signing callers, he has managed to cover the full day's work of an ordinary individual.

SWELTERING STATES WILL GET RELIEF

Clouds Threaten to Deluge
Sections Where Death Accompanied Heat.

CHICAGO, July 1.—Lowering clouds that threatened to deluge half the States of the Midwest today forecast quick relief from the four-day heat wave that has taken a toll of 200 lives and nearly 1,000 prostrations since the mercury first began to mount last Friday.

The torrid spell reached its climax yesterday and before midnight the temperature was reported to be dropping in nearly all the cities of the heat belt. Cooling breezes from the lakes caused a drop of nearly twenty degrees in twelve hours, and thermometers registering from 81 to 85 today.

Chicago's list of dead for the last twenty-four hours is now 38, with reports of infant mortalities coming in hourly. The mercury went to 85.6, the hottest June day in the history of the Government Weather Bureau.

Another important record announcement for July is that Morgan Kingston, the English coal miner, furnishes a double link. Mr. Kingston was working as a colliery foreman when it was discovered that he had a voice rivaling Casanova. He will appear in grand opera in this country next fall. George Harrere, famous flute virtuoso, has furnished records for the July list, and there are late ragtime and Broadway hits among the summer records.

The total number of deaths from heat during the present warm weather in Pittsburgh is eighteen.

PITTSBURGH, July 1.—Thunder showers tonight, relief from the heat wave tomorrow, with a probable temperature of 85 tomorrow, was the prediction of Forecaster Pennywitt today. Four additional deaths were reported today, and six deaths resulted from the record heat of yesterday, when the official thermometer registered 97 at 5 p. m.

Cooler Weather Is on Its Way to Capital

Cool weather is on the way East. The backbone of the heat wave in the central States is due to break today or tomorrow, and then moderate weather will be the rule along the seaboard, according to the Weather Bureau forecast.

The movement of the cool wave, however, is scheduled to be slow, and may not hit the coast for a day or two.

Tumulty Goes Swimming
In New Jersey Waters

Secretary Tumulty, finding things around the White House rather quiet, left Washington at 11 o'clock this morning for the Jersey coast, whether he will spend the day bathing and visiting friends, with a little official business interspersed, his sports. He will return to Washington tonight.

DISKS REPRODUCE BOY SCOUT CALLS

Work of Showing Animal Cries in Graphophone Done by Ernest Thompson Seton.

The "call of the wild" will be heard in cities throughout the land as the result of a new work undertaken by Ernest Thompson Seton, naturalist. Mr. Seton is an officer of the American Boy Scouts, whose numbers have grown to more than 300,000. Each scout patrol has its individual call, generally based on the cry of some wild animal. The scout manual describes these cries as well as possible, but there are some things that cannot be written. Ernest Thompson Seton's work, therefore, was to make disk records of all the Boy Scout calls. The Columbia Graphophone Company offered him the facilities of their recording department and he carefully prepared a speech, not only explaining these calls, but demonstrating them. He made a record of this speech, and it is easily the most interesting thing in the July list of recordings by the Columbia company. It is a record that not only will appeal to the scouts and the other lovers of wild life, but it will be interesting and instructive to all.

The bellow of a bull moose, the bark of a wolf, the call of the dog, and other unusual animal yells are faithfully reproduced.

Another important record announcement for July is that Morgan Kingston, the English coal miner, furnishes a double link. Mr. Kingston was working as a colliery foreman when it was discovered that he had a voice rivaling Casanova. He will appear in grand opera in this country next fall. George Harrere, famous flute virtuoso, has furnished records for the July list, and there are late ragtime and Broadway hits among the summer records.
